

Magical Inle Lake

Named by many as a piece of heaven on Earth this wonderful watery world of floating markets and stilted villages is a unique opportunity to “float” away from everyday life.

Famous for their special leg rowing technique, the Intha people are one of several hill tribes living on and around Myanmar’s second largest lake. The beautiful floating gardens dot this vast lake and make up for a meditative landscape to sail around and indulge. On shore crumbling stupas at the foot of the mountains enhances the dreamlike scenery and it is almost as if you are on a different planet. If the included guided tours aren’t enlightenment enough for you, you can rent a canoe and paddle through the calm waters or take a bicycle and explore the lush countryside. Either way, Inle Lake is balm for the soul.

Glorious Beach Escape – Ngapali Beach

Listen to the gentle waves lapping at the shores of the pristine, white beaches of Ngapali while you relax under the palm trees that line the huge expanse of sandy beach.

Although it is a popular retreat for locals, Ngapali has retained its lazy, fishing town appeal for decades. Spend four glorious days basking in the sun and give your body a well-deserved break from the exertions of the marathon.

Rustic fishing settlements are scattered around the area, making Ngapali a perfect base for exploring other small towns and villages. Or why not go snorkelling and discover the underwater world off the shores of the beach? Whatever your interests, Ngapali is the perfect destination for the end of your Myanmar journey.
